Kanchenjunga Trek:

Welcome to Kanchenjunga:

The Kanchenjunga Trek is a challenging and remote trekking route that takes you to the base camp of Mount Kanchenjunga, the third highest mountain in the world. It is located in the eastern part of Nepal, near the border with India. The trek offers a unique opportunity to explore pristine natural beauty, remote villages, and breathtaking mountain scenery.

The Kanchenjunga Circuit Trek is a popular and remote adventure in Nepal's far east, offering stunning views, diverse landscapes, and an opportunity to immerse oneself in nature. The trek requires a local guide and at least two trekkers to collect necessary permits and is less popular than Everest Base Camp or Annapurna Base Camp. The trek is known for its natural beauty and wildlife, including the world's third-highest peak, Mt. Kanchenjunga. The Kanchenjunga Conservation Area Project protects the region, hosting species like pheasants, snow leopards, and red pandas. The trek can be visited through two treks: the Northern Base Camp or the Southern Base Camp but choosing both on the same trip can be challenging due to the landscape's diversity. The eastern part of Nepal, including Kanchenjunga, has escaped major earthquake impacts, and there have been no reported deaths or casualties in the Kanchenjunga Trekking Circuit.
